Descriptive Summary:

Creator: Daly, Peter Francis; Second Workingmen's Building and Loan Association; Workingmen's

Building and Loan Association

Title: Barrood Papers from 1 Elm Row

Dates [inclusive]: 1909-1927 Quantity: 2 cubic ft. (7 boxes)

Summary: The collection holds the business correspondence of Judge Peter Francis Daly from 1909 to 1916, and of the Second Workingmen's Building and Loan Association (later known as the Workingmen's Building and Loan Association) from 1918 to 1927.

Collection No.: MC 11

Provenance note:

When Louis Barrood, Jr. acquired the property at 1 Elm Row around October of 2003, he found on the fourth floor of that building several file cabinets containing binders of papers from past tenants. Though the binders were yellowed and covered with pigeon droppings, they had done their job in protecting their contents from the same indignity, and were found to contain the correspondence of Judge Peter Francis Daly and that of the Second Workingmen's Building & Loan Association (later renamed the Workingmen's Building & Loan Association), as well as material related to Alexander Merchant.

Mr. Barrood decided that the best way to make the papers accessible to scholars and other interested parties was to loan them to the New Brunswick Free Public Library, with the understanding that they could be retrieved for display at 1 Elm Row, should it be restored. From the collection, he retained one Alexander Merchant drawing, a front view of 6 Llewelyn Street, New Brunswick; the rest now reside within the archives of the New Brunswick Free Public Library.

Additional Archivist Note about the history of the donation of the Barrood Papers, added December 5, 2014:

Some years ago Morris H. Kafka was helping Louis Barrood Jr. examine the historic building at 1 Elm Row. In the attic the papers of Judge Daley were found along with a map chest which contained architectural drawings. Mr. Kafka, who is an architectural historian, recognized the material and its significance. They were the work of Mr. Alexander Merchant and Mr. Isaac Purcell, noted local architects. The men then arranged to have all the materials donated to the New Brunswick Free Public Library where patrons and researchers would be able to access them. The documents are now located in the archive at the library and may be used by any patron. Facsimile copies of some of the Merchant drawings and plans are on permanent display in one of the meeting rooms in the Henry Guest House. We are very grateful to both these men for their perceptive recognition of the value of these materials for New Brunswick's historic record, preventing their loss and making sure that they came to a place where all the citizens of New Brunswick will benefit.

When asked by email his version of the story, Morris Kafka wrote this explanation which conveys his palpable excitement even now:

Louis Barrood Jr. was contemplating a renovation of the building at 1 Elm Row and had asked me to examine the structure with him so we met and looked at the mostly vacant building (now home to Mike's Courtside Tayern).

The attic was locked and Louis went around the corner to his family real estate office to find a key to it. Meanwhile I was alone and the door suddenly yielded to me. I went on up to the pigeon filled attic and saw immediately the papers of Judge Daly along with the cast off furnishings and possessions of prior residents... and I saw the drawing cabinet in the far distance. Louis came back and I asked him about the cabinet. He asked if I wanted it and I said I did not but I was curious as to what might be in it. We clambered over the miscellany in the attic and when I pulled open the drawers I was very excited to see drawings with Merchant's name on them and then some of Parsell's. I immediately called Jean Kolva (Highland Park Historian - had done a presentation on Merchant) and Dr. Belvin to alert them to what was found. This was perhaps a decade ago give or take.

(From Morris Kafka by email 1 December 2014.)

Biographical Sketch for Peter Francis Daly:

Peter Francis Daly (1867-1934) was a prominent judge and lawyer in New Brunswick, N.J., serving as Supreme Court Justice from 1930 to his death. He was a popular orator, and active in public and political activities.

Born to Irish parents in New York City on May 19, 1867, he was a resident of New Brunswick from the age of 6. He went to St. Peter's parochial school, followed by Livingston high school. He studied law with Senator James H. Van Cleef, and was admitted to the bar in 1888. He served from 1892 to 1902 as deputy and attorney to Surrogate Leonard Furman; in 1902, he was elected himself as Surrogate of Middlesex County, then re-elected in 1907. In 1911, he was appointed judge of the Middlesex County Court of Common Pleas by then-Governor Woodrow Wilson, whom he supported warmly throughout his career. He was reappointed in 1916 and again in 1921, and in 1923 he was elevated by Governor George S. Silzer to the New Jersey Circuit Court Bench. In 1930, he was appointed Supreme Court Justice by Governor Morgan F. Larson.

He held numerous public office positions, including Alderman of the Sixth Ward of New Brunswick, chairman of the County Legal Advisory Board, chairman of the Middlesex County Democratic executive committee, and first president of the Middlesex County Bar Association. He was founder and first Grand Knight of the New Brunswick Council of the Knights of Columbus, charter member and Past Exalted Ruler of the New Brunswick Lodge of Elks, a member of the Royal Arcanum, and officer of the University Extension Society of Rutgers College. He also served for many years as solicitor for the New Brunswick Workingmen's Building and Loan Association.

His offices were located at 40 Paterson Street until some point between 1924 and 1926, when they were moved to 1 Elm Row.

The judge was highly popular among his colleagues, as can be seen by the petition written and signed by every practicing lawyer in the county, aside from two or three, for the reappointment of Judge Daly to the bench in his third appointment to that position. He was also known as an advocate of the people, as is detailed in his biographies and can also be seen in the many, many petitions found in the correspondence contained within this collection.

Mr. Daly married Mary Rose Mansfield on September 25, 1893, at the Church of the Sacred Heart, New Brunswick, and had by her a daughter, Margaret Mansfield, who married William Thornton Campbell of New Brunswick on June 5, 1920. After the death of his first wife, he married Mary A. Stacey.

He died on April 21, 1934, in St. Peter's Hospital, of heart disease. He had been seriously ill since April 10, when he suffered a heart attack at his home at 146 Hamilton Street, and was buried in St. Peter's Cemetery.

Historical Sketch for the Workingmen's Building and Loan Association:

The Workingmen's Building and Loan Association was a small-scale savings and loan association that operated in New Brunswick, N.J. during the late 1800s and early 1900s. Organized in 1895, its officers in 1909 were James J. McCloskey, Vice-President; Alfred V. Harding, Treasurer; Secretary, Patrick Hagerty, and its offices were located at 40 Paterson Street. Peter Francis Daly served as Solicitor since its inception. 300 shares were subscribed by the incorporators.

By the late 1910's, it had changed its name to the Second Workingmen's Building and Loan Association, and Eugene J. McLaughlin had become Secretary.

In the 1920s, it changed its name from the Second Workingmen's Building and Loan Association back to the Workingmen's Building and Loan Association (the application for the name change is contained within the collection), and at some point between 1924 and 1926 moved premises from 40 Paterson Street to 1 Elm Row. Between 1940 and 1944, it changed its name yet again to the Workingmen's Savings and Loan Association, and it appears as such in the New Brunswick City Directory until 1956, when that name disappeared from the directory and the Elm Row Sandwich Shop took its place at 1 Elm Row.

Note on Arrangement:

The binders in which the papers were placed were of the sturdy, wooden, alphabetized type that used to be sold by booksellers. Some effort had been made to keep each paper documented under the letter related to either the correspondent, his/her organization, the subject of the letter, or name of township. Papers were not alphabetized within each letter; so, for instance, a letter from John Doe might come before one from Jane Darling.

Each binder contained papers that spanned a date range, although within the binder, chronological order was not observed.

Since the papers were already well-organized for search purposes, it was decided to keep to the original order as far as possible. Where papers appear to have no visible relation to the letter under which they have been filed, they have been left where they are and a note made in the Container List under the series.

Scope and Content Note:

The 1 Elm Row Papers, January 1909 to December 1927 collection comprises 7 boxes and 84 folders, occupying 2 cubic feet.

It contains the correspondence of Peter Francis Daly, from January 1911 to December 1917, in both his capacity as a lawyer and as a judge, as well as the papers of the Second Workingmen's Building and Loan Association (renamed the Workingmen's Building and Loan Association in the 1920s) from January 1917 to December 1927.

Series Descriptions –

The collection consists of three series:

I. Peter F. Daly Correspondence, January 1909 to December 1916 - Contains Mr. Daly's business correspondence in his role of lawyer and judge.

Box #1 (8 folders)
Box #2 (15 folders)

II. Peter F. Daly Court Correspondence, January 1911 to December 1916 - Contains Mr. Daly's business correspondence in his role of judge.

Box #3 (15 folders)

Box #4 (15 folders)

Box #5 (15 folders)

The first series contains the business correspondence of Mr. Daly in his roles as a lawyer and as a judge, while the second contains correspondence related primarily to his role as a judge. They include requests to Court Clerks for judgments concerning various people, excuses from jury duty, applications for permits, requests to previous and current judges for their portraits to hang on the courtroom wall, impassioned petitions from defendants or their spouses pleading their cases, and missives bringing a variety of misdemenours in the neighborhood to the attention of the judge. There are also many exchanges between Mr. Daly and the officials of the New Jersey State Hospital, the New Jersey Reformatory, the House of Good Shepherd, and other medical and rehabilitation institutions on the condition of indigent patients and behavior of inmates.

They contain letters of a slightly more personal nature as well, such as letters of recommendation and introduction, notices of overdue payment for life insurance, arrangements for meetings of Elk Lodge, letters of appreciation for various honors and appointments, such as that of County Judge, and letters to Joseph P. Tumulty, secretary to Woodrow Wilson first as Governor and later as President, introducing several students and requesting time with the President on their behalf.

All in all, very little of his personal life is reflected in his correspondence, but it is still possible to observe something of his character in the tact with which he dealt with the varied calls upon his time, in the multitude of petitions he received from people of all walks of life and levels of literacy, and in the personal attention he paid to these petitions.

One can also observe the differences in the role of a judge during that period. People wrote to inform the judge – sometimes anonymously – of various peccadilloes in the neighborhood (a rowdy saloon, a promiscuous woman), trusting him to be the best avenue through which the law could travel, and it can be seen from follow-up letters that these claims were investigated. Defendants and their friends and spouses wrote to him personally, explaining their situation. How much of this is due to the custom of the times and how much to Mr. Daly's own reputation for compassion is difficult to tell from these papers alone.

III. Workingmen's Building and Loan Association Papers, January 1918 to December 1927

Box #6 (16 folders)

Box #7 (16 folders)

Although Mr. Daly served as solicitor for the Workingmen's Building & Loan Association since the inception of the organization, there is no clear connection between the Association's correspondence and his own.

Most of the Association's correspondence was addressed to and written by Mr. Eugene J. McLaughlin, Secretary of the Association. It includes many bills, receipts, foreclosure warnings and notices of overdue payments, refusals of loans, transfers of shares, as well as calculation sheets connected to each account. The financial statements of the Association and sundry official papers such as annual reports or the application for a name-change can also be found within, as well as instructions to printers regarding the specifics of cash books to be printed and the related financial transactions. The papers reflect the operations of a small-scale bank in the early 1900's.

Arrangement:

Folders are arranged alphabetically.

For Series I and II, the papers are filed according to the name of sender, recipient or organization to which sender belonged; very rarely according to the case referenced, or to the related locale.

For Series III, correspondence is more consistently filed according to the name of the subject or account involved, with calculation sheets regarding the account indicated in each paper preserved along with the paper itself. However, there are still exceptions, so it is safest to check all possibilities.

A number of papers are filed under letters seemingly unrelated to the contents; these have been left in their original location, with a note of their location made under the series in the Container List.
