Requisites for Admission.

A pupil offered for admission, and expected to enter upon the graduating course of studies, is required to be at least twelve years of age, to be able to read fluently in ordinary prose writing, to be acquainted with the Orthography of such words as come within the scope of her reading and conversation, and to write in a legible manner. She must also be familiar with Geography, have learned through the conjugations of verbs in English Grammar, and have studied thoroughly the principles of Arithmetic through Denominate Numbers. If she fall below these requirements, she will be placed in the Primary Department, and taught there until she can pass the examination required for the first year of the regular course.

All pupils who have been members of the school, and wish to continue such, are required to be present on the first day of the session. The observance of this rule is indispensable to immediate and profitable classification, and it is hoped that the parents and guardians who patronize the school, will impress upon the minds of their children and wards, the truth, that punctuality is one of the cardinal virtues. If illness, or distance from the school renders it impossible for the pupil to be present on the first day, she should be in her place as early in the week as possible. Those who are not punctual lose much in their own studies, and greatly retard the progress of their classes.

Course of Instruction.

A course of Latin and Greek is combined with the English studies, because it affords the pupil great facility for tracing the etymology of words, and impressing their meaning more permanently upon her mind; and those pupils have generally been found to make the most rapid proficiency in their own language, who have studied other languages, particularly the Latin, in connection with it.

The English studies will be pursued separately through the whole course, if it is preferred by the parents, but no young lady can graduate without having pursued a thorough course of Latin and French.

The following order of studies will be adopted as far as practicable. Most of the studies of each year will be reviewed weekly, and Geography, Arithmetic, and English Grammar, to some extent, through the whole course. Changes will be made in the text books, whenever it is deemed necessary for the advancement of the classes.

The School is furnished with the usual appliances for illustration, viz: Globes, Maps, Charts, and Philosophical, Chemical, and Astronomical Apparatus.

Pupils are not allowed to bring any books of fiction to the School; as much light reading being furnished them by the Principal, as is deemed compatible with their moral improvement.

Remarks.

A pupil is not required to study Greek in order to Graduate, but it is a very desirable attainment, and so much as will enable her to trace out the etymology of words derived from that language, is very necessary to the intelligent study of the Natural Sciences. Perhaps very few pupils will be able to take all the studies of the last three years in that space of time, and in that case such studies will be selected from the course, as will best discipline the mind. Those wishing to receive a short course of instruction, will be allowed to enter any classes of either year for which their previous attainments may have qualified them.

Appendix.

The Academical year is divided into three Sessions, denominated Summer, Fall and Winter.

The Summer Session commences on the last Monday in April, and continues eleven weeks. The last three days of this Session are occupied in an examination of the pupils in their respective studies.

The Fall Session commences on the first Monday in September, and continues fifteen weeks.

The Winter Session commences on the first Monday in January, and continues fourteen weeks.

Pencil Drawing from copies will be given without charge.

In case the Parents or Guardians prefer separate items of expense, pupils will be furnished with books at the price charged the Principal by the Booksellers, but a sum sufficient to purchase them must be left with the pupils, that no bill may be contracted.

No eatables are allowed to be brought by the pupils, or sent to them, ~~unless~~ entrusted to the care of the Principal, as refectories are very inconvenient appendages to sleeping apartments.

20 Particular attention will be given to Physical Culture.

Each pupil is required to come provided with a napkin ring, an umbrella, and overshoes. <sup>night shoes esp.</sup> All articles of clothing to be marked with the full name of the owner, and the number of the same to be presented to the Principal upon the pupil's entrance into the school.

The pupils can receive visits from their immediate <sup>male</sup> family friends, the first week of every month, on Friday from 4 to 6 P. M., and on Saturday, <sup>also</sup> from 11 to 1, and from 3 to 6. Parents and Guardians are requested to observe this regulation as far as possible. The visits of the pupils are <sup>not</sup> expected to be in conformity with the rules of the school.

The letters written by the pupils, with a few exceptions, are <sup>not</sup> subject to the supervision of the Principal, and also those received by them, except from their own family.

Boarding pupils can be received at any time in the Session, when there is a vacancy; but to ensure admission for any Session, application ought to be made several weeks previous to the close of the preceding one.

21 A testimonial of moral character is required from the Pastor of the church which the pupil has attended, or from the Principal of the School of which she was last a member.

Expenses, etc., for Day Pupils.

Tuition, including English Branches, Latin, Greek, French, and Vocal Music, for Summer Session, 11 weeks, . . . . .	$ 9.90	11.

All tuition bills payable on the last day of the session, and no pupil will be expected to enter upon a new session whose previous bill has not been paid, unless there be a delay by agreement.

Regulations for both Boarding and Day Pupils.

Pupils will be charged from the commencement of the week on which they enter, to the close of the session, and no deduction made for absence except on account of protracted illness. No pupil will be expected to enter the school for a less period than one year.

The grade of scholarship is marked from nine to zero.

A report of each pupil's standing will be sent to Parents or guardians shortly after the close of the Fall and Winter Sessions, but as there is an examination of the pupils at the close of the Summer Session, no report will be sent for that Session.

No pupil is allowed to absent herself from the school for the purpose of visiting.

The pupils in the more advanced classes can have the benefit of a course of Lectures in the Winter Session, for a small additional charge.
